THE RAILS SPREAD

Prescett, Ark., November 27 Northbound passenger train No. 4 en route from Texarkana to St. Louis, on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railroad, was wrecked near here at 10:15 this morning. Engineer Asbury B. Archibald was killed. Engineer Asbury B. Archbold was killed. Fireman George Hays saved his life by jumping. The recent heavy rains caused the rails to spread and engine No. 1610, which was pulling the train, rolled down a six-foot embankment, where the accident occurred, and was turned completely upside down. Engineer Archbol was pinloned under the wreckage of his engine, and met death instantly. The mail and langgage car also left the track and turned over, and a mail clerk, whose name could not be ascertained, was slightly injured. The smoker, following the mail cor, was thrown directly across the right of way. None of the passengers were injured.

Some Sensible Points for Whist Players to Absorb.

Boston Transcript. Many players that are form dable sutagonists when they hold the "long end" of a deal often prove utterly weak when the tables are reversed and they are confronted by amperior odds. Some players seem to be imbued with the idea that the only defense against a strong trump hand is leadfonse against a strong trump hand is leading a singleton, in the hope of making a small trump ruffing or in forcing the strong trump hand. The first is probably the higgest fallacy that ever hampered a whist player. A hand must be worfully weak that would justify taking such a long chance. Even the most invetorate short suffers absiden their favories style of game when their adversaries start out upon the strong trump attack, and limit this venturescape coming to consteas when the the strong trump attack, and limit this venturesome opening to occasions when the trump strength of the deal is marked with trump strength of the deal is marked with their partner or where they have no means of knowing its location.

In favor of the forcing tactics there is smple authority, ancient and modern, one writer going so far as to say 'you are never too weak to force the strong advergary.' But "never" and "ever" are dangerous words to use in whist, as many players who have slavishly followed the above maxim have leaves to their loss. gerous words to use in what, is many players who have shavinly followed the above maxim have learned to their loss. A forcing suit is a weapon of great possibilities at times. When you opponents to your own level or destroy it entirely it is offen right to do so, and forcing is an important factor in the process that should not be lost sight of. With an establish of soil and fuir trump strength, one can often by a force establish the ong trump in his own hand and thus thwart the desirons of the casemy. The soundness of the play is ontour to the large mulgifly of players, and few lose by fulling to force in such situations. The lowers copie, is a title, in applying the forcing tactics to those cases where there is no hope of bringing your adversarice down to your day level, where the litter sie only too glad to give up a triump or two for the sake of getting the load, so as to "clear up" their pariner's suit or bring it in for him, thereby obtaining one or more much needed discards. Resolutions were adopted expension sma' hours.

physic hads trumps to defend his own set and his partner is exhausted of trumps forcing is the only defense, but when a player leads trumps to defend his partner's suit there are other oppurunities to defeat the religione, which must be kept in mind. When a player hads five tumps it very often happens that he nelds but three of his partner's suit and that he will have a small rank to get he will have a small rank to partner is with after two rounds of the suit. This can'd he is jealously guarding for the critical moment, when his adversaries are exhausted of trumps, and its came is to great that he often lends a losing trump to force an adversary to part with the master trump, and so clear the way for his partner's suit. This withole card may for the want of a better name be called the "throw in," and very properly becomes the subject of strack at the hands of a sharp adversary. If the "throw-in" can be drawn from the strong trump hand before you lose that trump you can "kill" a great suit unly so it is accomplished by a sure recentry card, and thus you can prevent the fatal discards and can deal with the strong trump hand at your lelaure.

Sametimes the opponents suit is not established as you hold the commanding card of it. Even here it is not always afte to force the strong trump hand, as he will immediately drag the remmanding card of his partner's suit away from you, and then if his partner has a re-entry card the suit makes and again those fatal discards come. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and again those fatal discards some. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and again those fatal discards some. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and again those fatal discards some. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and sain those fatal discards some. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and again those fatal discards some. In such cases the re-entry card the suit makes and sain those fatal discards some. It is not the defense. If these discards given the strong trumphand.

The above is the limit to the manceuvring possibilities of the defense. If none of the above counters are open to you, you must lay down your aces and kings with the utmost rapidity. This is known as the 'farmer's game,' and failure to resort to this elementary play is the cause of more tricks being lost than any other one fault. Excessive manceuvring is particularly apt to be the weakness of ambitous young players who have seen experts carry through successfully one of the forms of defense outlined above, and then attempt to follow in the footsteps of their guides before they have mastered the intricacles of the play.
